Punjab okays crop loan waiver scheme

Likely to benefit nearly 10.25 lakh farmers across the State; the amount to be defrayed to the banks in phases

The Punjab government on Wednesday gave its nod to notify the crop loan waiver scheme announced by Chief Minister Captain Amarinder Singh in the State Assembly earlier in June this year.

The Cabinet in its meeting held here decided that besides taking over the entire eligible loan amount of the farmers covered by the debt waiver scheme, the government would also take over the outstanding interest from April 1, 2007, till the date of notification.

“The entire amount would be defrayed to the banks in a phased manner, except for the cooperative credit institutions,” said an official spokesperson, adding that the proposed notification will pave the way for the State government to take up the issue with respective banks as a one-time settlement.

The spokesperson said that the scheme, based on the recommendations of an expert group headed by eminent economist Dr. T. Hague, will directly benefit nearly 10.25 lakh farmers across the state.

The notification ensures that in case of marginal farmers (less than 2.5 acres) who have total outstanding crop loan liability up to ₹2 lakh, only ₹2 lakh shall be provided as debt relief. In case of small farmers (from 2.5 acres to less than 5 acres), the entire eligible amount of those farmers who have total outstanding crop loan liability up to ₹2 lakh, shall be provided as debt relief, said the spokesperson.

SC reserves Cauvery verdict

Appeals were filed by three States on final award of Tribunal

LEGAL CORRESPONDENT

The Supreme Court on Wednesday reserved its judgment on the appeals filed by Tamil Nadu, Karnataka and Kerala against the final award of the Cauvery Management Board (CMB) in 2010 on the location of the river water to the three States.

Three days of the hearing before a Special Bench of Chief Justice Dipak Misra and Justices Amitava Roy and M. Shantanugouda, Tamil Nadu reiterated its stand that the Supreme Court should itself appoint the authority and frame the scheme for sharing and management of the water among the three States.

Tamil Nadu submitted that it should not leave the dispute open for Karnataka to take advantage of. Though the Centre agreed that it is in Parliament which has to finalise the scheme under the interstate Water Disputes Act of 1969, the court responded that it does also have a right.

Before wrapping up the day-long hearing, the court informed the counsel that it would pass orders in the regard.

Centre child

On Tuesday, the court had Childed the Centre for not implementing the final award.
The court had questioned the reluctance shown by the Centre to set up the Cauvery Management Board and frame a scheme for implementation of the final award.

Legislative action

The scheme, once prepared, would have to be placed before both the Houses of Parliament for approval. Thus, Mr. Kumar argued that finalising the scheme was a legislative act.

However, the court has been of the consistent opinion that the Centre should frame a scheme for implementation for so long. The tribunal award was notified in 2010 – in the Cauvery dispute, the setting up of the Cauvery Management Board and a scheme for sharing of water.

Not afraid of death: K.S. Bhagavan

The Kannada writer says ideas cannot be killed

Mr. Bhagavan, under threat from Hindutva forces, said he was not afraid of death, despite efforts by hardline elements to silence liberal thinkers and humanists.

The killing of Gauri Lankesh early this month has created a scare and, generally, for liberal thinkers and humanists. She was shot dead in Bangalore, and the incident and the killing of journalist and activist Nalini Chidambaram have raised alerts.

Mr. Bhagavan said he was neither a leftist nor a rightist but a humanist, who wanted everyone to live in peace and harmony. He said it was sad that those who were the essence of openness, intellect and tolerance had to face death threats.

He added his followers to question everything and not to believe in their own religion, caste or politics.

He said he stood by the principle of national integration, which he said was narrower than the concept of integration. Nationalism meant living in peace with everyone. To be free and let free was the essence of nationalism, he said.

He questioned the attempt by the ruling party to impose a ban on eating beef, which he said was not a question of religion but a question of freedom to express oneself, and his followers should not be afraid of death.

He added that he was not afraid of death, and the ideas of his followers could not be killed.

He said the police had come to his house and asked him that he did not believe what a colleague believed. He had even ordered them not to believe what the police believed.

On September 4, 2016, the CII (Confederation of Indian Industries) published a report titled “The Need for Streamlining India’s Export Surveillance System.”

The report, titled “The Need for Streamlining India’s Export Surveillance System,” was aimed at identifying existing bottlenecks in the export surveillance system and suggesting recommendations to improve the same. The report suggested that there was a need for a streamlined export surveillance system that would help in reducing the delay in the clearance of goods for export.

The report highlighted that the current system of export surveillance was complex and time-consuming, leading to delays in the clearance of goods for export. It recommended the implementation of an electronic export surveillance system that would enable real-time monitoring and tracking of export transactions. The system would also help in reducing the number of physical inspections required, thereby reducing the time taken for clearance.

The report further suggested that the government should establish a dedicated export regulatory authority to oversee the export surveillance system. This would help in ensuring that the system was implemented efficiently and effectively.

In conclusion, the report recommended the implementation of a streamlined export surveillance system to reduce the delay in the clearance of goods for export. The proposed system would help in improving the efficiency of the export surveillance system and reduce the time taken for clearance.

The report was published by the CII, a prominent business organization in India, which has a membership of more than 9,000 companies across various sectors. The report was widely discussed and received positive feedback from the business community in India.
Rahul may help party from Nov.

No floor test, no bypoll for 18 seats: HC

Madhulika Gandhi’s threat to start a campaign against Modi government could be the last straw that breaks the camel’s back in Congress. Thus, it may be that Rahul Gandhi is the last option for those who want a change in leadership. This is not to say that the Congress will not be able to run the country without Rahul Gandhi as its leader. However, if Rahul Gandhi is not elected as the new leader of the Congress, it may be that the party will continue to be run by its current leadership. The possibility of a by-election in the 80-member state of Uttarakhand is also being considered, and if Rahul Gandhi were to be elected as the leader of the Congress, it may be that the by-election would be avoided. However, if Rahul Gandhi is not elected as the leader of the Congress, it may be that the party will continue to be run by its current leadership.

Sonia Gandhi, who is the daughter of former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, is expected to be elected as the next leader of the Congress. She has been a member of the Congress for over 40 years and has held several important positions in the party. She is expected to be elected as the leader of the party in the upcoming elections. The election is expected to take place on October 28, and the result will be declared on November 2.

The next bypolls in the state of Uttarakhand are expected to be held in November and December. The Congress is expected to win both bypolls, and it is expected that Rahul Gandhi will be elected as the leader of the party in the upcoming elections.

Call to wipe out modern slavery

Activists seek plan to meet SDG 87

This current target and indicators proposed by the UN are wholly inadequate

One in three forms of increased inspections and some forms of labour inspections is essential for the realization of the SDG 87. The SDG 87 calls for "immediate and effective measures to eradicate forced labour and modern slavery." Hence, the prohibition and elimination of the worst forms of child labour will be a sine qua non of the global campaign against these threats. This also implies the elimination of modern slavery and forced labour in line with the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).

Noting "dramatic international discussion on the negative impact of modern slavery on global human rights," the statement said "an online emphasis on unacceptable domestic and political protection of modern slavery due to economic exploitation; even now based on social, cultural, traditional and religious motivations; and gender-based and racial motivations; along with the existing legal and policy frameworks for the enforcement of modern slavery and forced labour in the state of the region. We have taken note of all the economic indicators that are available." Mr. Jaitley also said that "a more robust government in terms of creating policies and frameworks for the enforcement of modern slavery and forced labour is necessary." The statement said "the evidence presented by the Alliance against Slavery and Human Trafficking, and the International Labour Organization, shows that the worst forms of child labour and human trafficking are".

Yes, soft, gradual process would be fruitful

SNOW FLURRY

As soon as written within Sri Lanka's post-revolution govern-
